Holiday Death Toll Is Below 410 Forecast

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Traffic 355
Drownings 175
Miscellaneous 91
Total 621

Cautious driving by millions of home-bound motorists held the nation's July 4th weekend holiday traffic toll well below the pre-holiday estimate of 410.

Late reports of highway deaths will boost the total but indications are it will fall short of the record toll predicted by safety experts for a three-day July 4 holiday period.

However, it appears the final count will be close to the number killed during the recent Memorial Day holiday period. The 371 traffic deaths for the three-day Memorial Day period set a new record for the holiday.

Thus, the traffic death toll for the first two long weekend holidays this year was more than 725. During the first five months this year traffic deaths averaged 68 per day.

The National Safety council had estimated the 410 traffic death toll for the 78-hour period starting at 6 p.m. (local time) Thursday and ending last midnight. The record high traffic toll for a three-day July 4 holiday period was 407 set in 1955 while the record low since World War II was 225 deaths in 1947.

The holiday was marred by several multiple traffic accident deaths. One of the biggest was near Junction City, Kan., Saturday in which six persons were killed in the collision of two cars.

Drownings took a heavy toll, surpassing by far the 132 reported during the Memorial Day period. Deaths from miscellaneous type accidents also were higher than the 88 during the Memorial Day holiday.

A fireworks plant blew up in Portland, Ore., killing one child and injuring at least 20 persons. However, no deaths in fireworks displays were reported.

An Associated Press survey during the nonholiday period covering 78 hours from June 19 to June 22, showed 339 traffic deaths, 118 drownings and 63 deaths in miscellaneous type accidents. "The over-all total of 520 was more than 100 under the combined total during the July 4 weekend."

Governor to Speak Monday Night at 8

Governor Orval Faubus brings his third term campaign to Hope tonight at 8 o'clock on the lawn of Hope City Hall.

The governor will discuss the campaign issues and will tell the progress of the state under his administration as Governor, a local spokesman said.

Seats will be provided for elderly persons, it was announced.

Faubus Finkbeiner Ward

LITTLE ROCK (AP)—Gov. Orval Faubus today faced a full week of heavy campaigning in his bid for a third term Democratic nomination.

Five stops were on his travel agenda today: Ashdown, De Queen, Nashville, Prescott and Hope. Campaigning across northeast and central Arkansas Saturday, the governor declared that Negro leaders had refused to accept the Thomas plan for settling the Little Rock school integration crisis "because they are making too much money out of it."

The Thomas plan was proposed several months ago by Herbert L. Thomas Sr., a Little Rock insurance executive. Among other things, it called for an interracial commission to help school districts progress voluntarily toward desegregation.

The plan was rejected by the State Board of Education. Faubus never has said whether he favored or opposed it.

Faubus said "every Negro attorney in Arkansas" is on the payroll of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People. "That's why they don't want to settle this thing," he asserted.

At Newport he had stopped at Harry Ashmore, executive editor of the Arkansas Gazette, and opponent Chancelor Lee Ward, of Paragould.

"They are segregationists who say we must abide by the law of the land," Faubus said. "If they had abided by the law of the land 176 years ago they wouldn't have signed the Declaration of Independence."

He also repeated a previous assertion that forces outside the state are working against him. "They are against me for the good things I have done," he said. "I've been as good to the Negro as any other governor ever has been."

Faubus declared that he placed National Guardsmen at Little Rock Central High School last September to prevent violence and "I still believe I was right in doing so." The guardsmen under Faubus' orders temporarily blocked integration of the school.

His touring schedule this week includes: Tuesday — Lewisville, Bradley, Stamps, Magnolia, Stephens and El Dorado. Wednesday — Strong, Crossett, Hamburg, Lake Village, Dumas and Monticello. Thursday — Southern States Auto, Prentiss, Conference at Little Rock, Sheridan, Hampton and Camden. Friday — Mount Ida, Glenwood, Murfreesboro and Arkadelphia. Saturday — Benton.

State's Death Toll 14 for 4th Week-End

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
The fourth of July highway carnage ended Sunday midnight with Arkansas counting a traffic toll of 350 traffic deaths for the 78-hour holiday weekend. Four persons drowned bringing the state's death toll to 14 for the holiday period.

During the entire week a total of 27 persons died violently in Arkansas. The tabulation for the seven days included traffic deaths, drownings, 11 shooting deaths, 11 and total blow 4.

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — Chris Finkbeiner planned to spend today in Little Rock preparing a "major policy speech" in his race for the Democratic gubernatorial nomination.

His aides said a date for delivering the speech had not been set. In a statement issued at his campaign headquarters here Saturday, the Little Rock businessman said a private poll conducted recently had shown that he would face Gov. Orval Faubus in a runoff two weeks after the July 29 pre-ferential primary.

He charged that Faubus and "his hand-picked henchmen" are putting the fear of God in people to keep out of this race.

"It is tragic to travel the state and see fear in the eyes of substantial citizens who have done business with the present administration," he said. "Some of my very close friends have been chilled with fear but are finding ways to help."

Finkbeiner asserted: "I fought one war to destroy a dictator. Now we are in a fight to the finish right here in Arkansas to prevent one man and his henchmen from controlling every state board and commission in Arkansas."

Finkbeiner announced this schedule for the remainder of the week: Tuesday — Conway and other points in Faulkner County, and Booneville. Wednesday — Washington County. Thursday — Camden, Hampton, Cullendale and surrounding area. Friday — Russellville, Dardanelle, Danville, and 7:30 p. m. speech in court house square at Benton. Saturday — Van Buren, Alma, Ozark, and 5 p. m. speech at Paris.

Ward said that from all indications he has picked up considerable ground against the governor and that he does not consider the third candidate, Chris Finkbeiner of Little Rock, much of a factor.

"More and more people are coming out for me and telling me that Orval is losing ground all the time," he said.

His campaign schedule for the remainder of the week includes: Tuesday — Dierks, De Queen, Horatio, Foreman, Ashdown and Hope-Springhill. Wednesday — Bradley, Lewisville, Stamps, Waldo, Magnolia and 8 p. m. televised speech at Texarkana. Thursday — Gurdon, Prescott, Sparkman, Donaldson and Arkadelphia.

4-H Poultry Judging Show Here July 9

The first Poultry Judging Contest practice study day for 4-H Club members will be held at the Third District Livestock Show poultry building at Hope Fair Park, Wednesday, July 9, beginning at 10 a. m. announced County Agent Oliver L. Adams. All youth and leaders interested in poultry are invited that each may have the needed information.

A district poultry judging contest will be conducted this fall as a feature of 4-H Club Day at the Third District Livestock Show. All 4-H members, regardless of age who have a poultry demonstration, may take part.

A four members poultry team from each county in Arkansas may take part in the State Poultry Judging Contest to be held during the Arkansas Livestock Show at Little Rock. To take part in the state contest club members must be 14 years of age and under 21. The top scoring team in the State Competition will represent Arkansas in National Contest.

Wednesday at Hope Fair Park the 4-H youth will study judging methods that will aid in the actual judging later in the year.

Extension Poultryman Ruben H. Johnson will assist with the judging activity that will consist of observing hens for meat and present production judging live market fowl and live market broilers and placing white shell eggs and brown shell eggs externally by comparison according to size, shape, uniformity, color, shell texture and condition of shell. Pictures of birds will be used to identify the class, breed, and variety.

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — Chancelor Lee Ward will suspend his gubernatorial campaigning for two days late this week because of his daughter's approaching marriage.

But today the helicopter-driving Paragould judge will continue the furious pace that has carried him to almost all sections of Arkansas. His schedule calls for stops at Menard, Mount Ida, Glenwood, Amity, Murfreesboro and Nashville.

Ward has no appearances scheduled for Friday because of a rehearsal dinner at Paragould for the wedding of his daughter, Carol Lee. He also will take Saturday off because of the wedding.

At Hardy Saturday, the chancellor told a newsman that in his 4,500 air-mile flights around the state he has found a "deep fear" on the part of people to speak their minds openly.

"This is an atrocious atmosphere for the state to get into," he said. "Orval Faubus is to blame. He has created an atmosphere of hate, suspicion, Tenseness and actual fear."

Ward said that from all indications he has picked up considerable ground against the governor and that he does not consider the third candidate, Chris Finkbeiner of Little Rock, much of a factor.

Hot Springs to Be Host for Miss America

HOT SPRINGS, Ark. (AP) — This resort city gets its first opportunity to play host to the Miss America Pageant July 17-19.

The franchise was awarded last November to the senior and junior chambers of commerce by Miss America Pageant Inc. of Atlantic City, N. J.

Previously, with one exception in central Arkansas, the beauty contests have been staged in eastern Arkansas cities.

Young civic leaders here began maneuvering for the pageant in 1950 after Miss Mary Lois Jennings became the first Hot Springs girl to be crowned Miss Arkansas.

Since that time three other Hot Springs girls have made the grade. The current queen is Miss Suzanne Scudder of Hot Springs.

Wednesday at Hope Fair Park the 4-H youth will study judging methods that will aid in the actual judging later in the year.

Ward, Local Candidates at Spring Hill

County and District Candidates will speak Tuesday night at 8 o'clock at Spring Hill School.

Preceding the speaking of County and District candidates, Lee Ward, candidate for governor, will speak from 7:30 until 8 p. m.

Arkansas River Projects Win Senate Favor

—Millwood —Broken Bow

By GORDON BROWN

WASHINGTON (AP)—Members of the Senate Appropriations Committee were about 5½ million dollars more sympathetic to pleas for Arkansas River funds this year than were members of the House committee.

It was early in May that a huge Arkansas - Oklahoma delegation came to Washington and presented arguments to both committees for approving more funds for Arkansas River projects than recommended by resident Eisenhower.

The House committee stuck close to the budget requests but last week the Senate committee came up with a bill carrying 5½ million dollars more than the House had voted for Arkansas River work.

The big increase was a four million dollar allowance for bank stabilization work along the river in the two states. The big delegation had asked seven million dollars in addition to the $54,000 Eisenhower recommended for emergency bank stabilization. The House went along with the $41,000 but the Senate committee put in four million dollars more for regular bank stabilization work.

In addition the Senate group hiked the amount for Keystone dam in Oklahoma to 10 million dollars, compared with 8½ million in the budget and in the House bill.

Pleas of the two-state delegation for additional allowances for Dardanelle dam in Arkansas, and Eufaula and Oologah in Oklahoma.

Angry Bird Is Driving This Man Crazy

WESTBURY, N.Y. (AP) — A blackbird — otherwise friendly and well behaved—makes like an infuriated eagle every time it spies Joseph Siniscalchi.

It doesn't bother his wife, Helen; their daughter, Donna, 10; or visitors.

But every time Siniscalchi puts his head out the door, the bird dives from a tree, screeching and chattering, and wheels over his head. When he comes home from work, the bird is waiting to attack.

It all started about two weeks ago while he was working in his garden. He thought he might have disturbed a nest. But he looked, and couldn't find any.

Mystified and fed up with it all, Siniscalchi said: "At first, I thought it was amusing. Now that bird is driving me crazy."

Survivors of Globemaster Crash Tell of Fighting Off Sharks Before Their Rescue

HONOLULU (AP)—Three survivors of the C124 Air Force transport plane which went down early Friday in mid-Pacific returned here Sunday night to tell of fighting off a school of sharks before they were rescued.

Nine were aboard the plane. One body was recovered and five others are missing and presumed drowned.

Returning here on the aircraft carrier Boxer, which picked up the three survivors 200 miles northeast of Johnston Island, Capt. Jonathan W. Brown, the plane's commander, told newsmen: "One of the sharks got a good hold on me and was shaking me."

"We were pounding the water and yelling and thrashing and kicking around. I was beating on the shark's head with my fist. He finally let go. There were several of them around and they swam away."

He said they apparently were put off somewhat by shark repellent from the men's lifejackets and by all the noise.

Returning with Brown were T. Sgt. James M. Phillips, Vacaville, Calif., and S. Sgt. James P. Vandere, San Rafael, Calif. Both were navigators on the big craft, which was on a flight from Travis Air Force Base in California to Tokyo with a crew of seven plus two military contractors picked up in Hawaii. Brown, who comes from Sioux City, Iowa, lives at Travis AFB, northeast of San Francisco.

Brown, Phillips and Vandere all had minor cuts, gasoline burns and stains from shark repellent. Brown had a minor shark bite on his left shoulder.

They were taken to the Army's Tripler General Hospital for treatment. Brown said the big Globemaster ditched 200 miles this side of Johnston Island after the No. 3 engine began backfiring and threw its propeller through the fuselage, cutting off all electric power and communications and crippling all controls except the rudder and elevator. The right wing dipped and the plane broke up into sections as it hit the water.

"It went under immediately. I came up through a hole right above me," Brown said.

Jack Anderson, who works for columnist Drew Pearson, was found in the room with Shacklette. Anderson said he too had information about the alleged wire tapping, but the microphone and electronic gear were Shacklette's. Harris acknowledged that he had told Shacklette to see what he could find out about reports his telephone was tapped. But he said Shacklette's electrical eavesdropping was not authorized. Harris said he still does not know whether his telephone has been tampered with.

Goldfine, gift-giving friend of presidential aide Sherman Adams whom the subcommittee now is investigating, charged "Gestapo tactics" when he learned of the postmidnight incident.

"I'm shocked beyond words by such disgraceful conduct by an official representative of a congressional committee," Goldfine said later after huddling with Toole and Goldfine's Washington lawyer Roger Robb.

Goldfine issued immediate orders for his entourage to move out of the hotel. Goldfine's own suite was on the second floor, six floors below Lotlo's.

The developments overshadowed all other recent events in the sensation-packed House probe of charges that Goldfine bestowed gifts widely among federal employees and got special federal treatment in return. Both he and Adams have denied the special treatment charges.

The textile and real estate magnate flew in from Boston Sunday night with a promise to tell the subcommittee, at last, about three quarters of a million dollars worth of his checks that have gone uncashed for years.

He returns for a third day of testimony before the subcommittee Tuesday.

But Goldfine had hardly retired to his suite before the case took its newest turn.

Here's what happened: Lotlo phoned newsmen between 11 p.m. and midnight that he was arranging a 12:30 a.m. news conference on some matters which Goldfine had brought into town an hour or so earlier.

Reporters gathered in Lotlo's Room 800 at the appointed hour but the news conference never came off. While they were chatting informally and waiting for it to start, Robb and Lotlo bustled about. Then the two Goldfine aides and Phil Brennan, Lotlo's newsmen into another room of the suite.

Robb then whispered that about 11 p.m. he had spotted a microphone just on the other side of a locked door concealing Room 800.

Hidden 'Mike' Found on Aide of Rep. Harris

WASHINGTON (AP) — A batch of Bernard Goldfine's confidential papers was reported stolen from a hotel room today. A microphone was found planted to eavesdrop on conversations of his aides quartered in the same hotel.

The sensational developments swirled around a congressional investigation of relations between Goldfine, a Boston industrialist, and White House aide Sherman Adams. The probe suddenly was converted into an investigation by the committee of its own staff.

Washington police also were investigating, and the FBI was reported to be.

The committee's chief investigator, Baron I. Shacklette, was in a hotel room next door to the suite occupied by Goldfine's aides when the microphone was found in the early morning hours. With him was Jack Anderson, a legman for columnist Drew Pearson.

"Mr. Harris did not authorize any particular type of investigation," Shacklette said.

Science Shrinks Piles New Way Without Surgery Stops Itch—Relieves Pain

New York, N. Y. (Special) — For the first time science has found a new healing substance with the astonishing ability to shrink hemorrhoids, stop itching and relieve pain without surgery. In case after case, while gently relieving pain, actual reduction (shrinkage) took place. Most amazing of all—results were so thorough that sufferers made astonishing statements like "Piles have ceased to be a problem!" The secret is a new healing substance (Bio-dye) — discovery of a world-famous research institute. This substance is now available in suppository or ointment form under the name Preparation 111. with adjoining Room 406. Robb said that he had noticed earlier that the door to Room 406 was a fraction of an inch above the floor line. He said he knelt down and saw a pair of shoes move. He called Brennan. Brennan said he saw a pair of hands and what appeared to be someone else peering back at him from the darkness on the other side of the crack under the door.

Next, Robb produced for newsmen a former Washington, D.C., policeman, Lloyd V. Furr, whom Robb hired a week ago to check on eavesdropping. Furr said he confirmed there was a microphone next door. Furr and Robb led the group over to the locked door.

Furr slid a wire coat hanger under the door, then pulled back in a swift motion. Out came a small gray microphone the size of a "tiny mouse," trailing behind it a tail of an electric cord several feet long. There wasn't a sound from next door. Lotto pounded on the hallway door to Room 500. No response. He called for a policeman, who said no city law was violated in using the microphone.

Forty-five minutes elapsed before the silent, locked suite was opened to the newsmen and photographers. The barrel-chested Shacklette did most of the talking while Anderson, whose by-line sometimes appears over the Pearson column, sat in an adjacent chair for the unscheduled news conference.

"We have information," Shacklette said in measured tones, "that committee members' telephones were tapped. I was given the assignment of checking to see whether this was true." "We had sufficient information," he went on, "to lead me to believe that there was an organized effort to dredge up every thing possible on committee members. (Beside reports of wiretaps, Harris last week had said mysterious calls for information about him had also been made to his constituents.)

This is a very clear demonstration of the way a girl can change her appearance rapidly through a switch in her hairdo. Sally Ann Hayes, who plays Eliza Doolittle in the New York company of "My Fair Lady," goes through a number of changes in hairstyles in the course of the musical. Here, she wears (left) long hair in an unsophisticated style suitable to a young girl. Then (center) she becomes very sophisticated for the ballroom scene and her appearance is completely changed. She wears a beautiful crown of curls. For the following scene, she wears (right) a simpler style pulled back into a double figure eight.

Versatile design embraces ample storage space in moderately priced modern furniture for a coordinated bedroom-sitting room ensemble. Sofa bed is framed in walnut and features cane panels. Rolling blanket chest doubles as an extra seat. At left, white plastic-lined desk unit is stacked on a low chest.

Steady Slips — Girl Loses Esteem For Him

Dear Dorothy Dix: One night my steady and I went to a club dance. As we approached the place, a certain girl whom I dislike very much was sitting in a car with two other girls. She called to my boy friend, "Have you got a kiss for me, big boy?" He did have — and that kiss was good-bye to our romance. I haven't felt the same about him since. I have never had occasion to doubt his love before or since, he admits it was a big mistake and claims it will never happen again. But how can I believe him? — T. W.

Dear T. W.: You are wasting time and energy worrying over a situation that should have been shrugged off with a laugh. Your steady's worse sin was not thinking fast enough. The girl caught him unaware and, being totally unprepared, he did the simplest and easiest thing — complied with her request. He's done everything he could to atone — begged your forgiveness, admitted he was foolish and promised not to do it again. What more can you possibly want? Perfection is not in the nature of man (or woman). Learn to accept the fact.

Dear Dorothy Dix: My girl friend is getting married next month and has asked me to be maid of honor. Mother says it is her duty to buy the dress, and everything I wear. Is she right? — Katie.

Dear Katie: Every bride-to-be will be happy to join in my "no!" Being asked to be a member of the wedding party is an honor for which you must pay the cost of appropriate clothing. The tabs on your dad.

Dear Dorothy Dix: All during the winter I have worn a fur line at winter sports. Comes the summer and I'm stuck I look fine in ski clothes, but am ill at ease in a bathing suit or tennis shorts. I'm very self-conscious about my legs. Whenever I walk past a group of people I'm sure they are whispering about me. — B. L.

Dear B. L.: You can do better. That we might find out who had paid for these private investigators, the trail led from the Steller Hotel (across the street from the Sheraton-Carlton) to this hotel. We were attempting to find out who in this hotel was responsible. "Mr. Harris did not authorize any particular type of investigation. He had not authorized 'telegraphic surveillance.'"

7 for Delock; Boston Takes Yanks 10-4

By JOE REICHLER
Associated Press Sports Writer

In spring training, Ivan (Ike) Delock was just another name on the Boston Red Sox roster. Manager Mike Higgins had plans for him, but only in relief roles, No. 2 behind Lefty Lee Kieley.

Today, as Higgins takes inventory during the season's half-way turn, he shudders to think where his second place Sox would be without Delock. Ike not only has blossomed into a starting pitcher but he has become the team's biggest winner and the ace of the staff.

The 28-year-old right-hander won his seventh game without defeat Sunday as the Red Sox defeated the New York Yankees 10-4. It was Boston's first victory over the American League leaders since April 16 and only the second in eight decisions this season.

The Yankees remained 11 games in front of Boston and Kansas City, tied for second. The A's were beaten by Cleveland 4-5. Detroit nipped Chicago 2-1 and Washington came from behind to shade Baltimore 4-3.

In the National League, Milwaukee retained its first place margin of one game over San Francisco with a 2-0 shutout at Pittsburgh. The Giants made it two in a row over St. Louis, 5-4. Chicago whipped Los Angeles 6-2 and Philadelphia and Cincinnati split a doubleheader. The Phillies won their seventh straight with a 7-1 opening victory and the Redlegs took the nightcap 11-4.

After limiting the Yankees to four hits through seven innings, Delock was clipped for three more hits in the eighth, including Mickey Mantle's 21st home run.

Ike received credit for snapping the Yankees' five-game winning streak, however, when Kieley replaced him with two runners on base and one out and retired the next five batters.

Delock, counting his last four decisions in 1957, now owns a string of 10 successive victories.

Ted Williams and Jackie Jensen paced the Red Sox's 13-hit attack against loser Don Larsen and five relievers. Each collected three hits. Williams rapped his 14th home run and Jensen drove in three runs to raise his league leading RBI total to 68. Jackie has hit safely in his last 15 games.

Jim Bunning racked up his fifth straight victory with a six-hit performance for the Tigers against the White Sox. The loser was Dick Donovan, his 10th in 13 decisions.

Cleveland rookie Gary Bell hurled a seven-hitter for his third victory in his first complete game in the majors. Ned Carver, who had beaten the Indians three times was the KC loser.

Relief pitcher Dick Hyde assured Washington of its first home victory against Baltimore since May 27, 1957, by retiring three straight Orioles in the ninth. Russ Kemmerer was the winner.

Good Memory Nets Him Golf Title at Akron

AKRON, Ohio (AP) — A good memory helped 34-year-old Art Wall Jr. to his first golf tournament victory in 16 months.

The 6-footer from Pocono Manor, Pa., tangled with Dow Finsterwald of Tequesta, Fla., in a sudden death playoff Sunday after they had tied in the 522-000 Rubber City Open with scores of 203- or 15 under par—for the 72-hole test.

Wall won the playoff with a birdie on the second extra hole of the par-71 Firestone Country Club course.

Wall said: "On the final round my two playing partners, Mike Souchak and Jack Fleck, had putts on that second hole just like the one I had against Dow. I didn't expect to be back that way for a year or so, but I noticed that both Mike and Jack missed their putts about an inch to the left. So I just hit mine straight at the middle of the hole, ignoring what looked like a bird in the green, and the ball went in for the birdie."

Giants Win 3rd in a Row in the 9th Inning

By JOE REICHLER
Associated Press Sports Writer

The Giants are still pulling off ninth inning heroics, one of the reasons San Francisco continues to hound Milwaukee, hanging on only one game behind the league leading Braves today.

For the third straight day, the Giants won a game in the ninth inning Sunday scoring the winning run in that frame. With the bases full, two out and the score tied in the last of the ninth, Cardinal relief pitcher Larry Jackson plunked Jimmy Davenport with a pitch, forcing over the winning run.

It was Jackson's second straight loss. He got in a jam by walking pitcher Red Worthington with one out. Willie Kirkland singled and Willie Mays drew an intentional pass, filling the bases. Jackson's first pitch to Davenport hit him in the back.

Philadelphia's Phillies extended their winning streak to seven by defeating Cincinnati 7-1, but the Redlegs won the second game of the doubleheader 11-4. The Braves broke their five-game losing streak as Joey Jay hurled a 9-0 shutout against Pittsburgh. Chicago's Cubs, behind the one-hit pitching of Dick Drott and Don Elefen, defeated Los Angeles 6-2.

The New York Yankees' first place lead in the American League remained 11 games despite their 10-4 defeat by Boston Kansas City, tied with the Red Sox in the runner-up spot, dropped an 8-5 decision to Cleveland. Detroit nipped Chicago 2-1 and Washington snapped a tie in the eighth to defeat Baltimore 4-3.

Jay, the Braves' 25-year-old home run right-hander, throttled the Phillies with only four hits for his second victory in five decisions. Wes Covington batted in both Milwaukee runs with a single in the fifth and a home run in the seventh, both against Curt Raydon.

In the Cubs' second straight triumph at Los Angeles, Drott won his fourth in ten decisions. He had a no-hitter until Jim Gilliam got the lone Dodger hit, a single with one out in the seventh.

Drott, however, had to be replaced after he forced in a run in the seventh with his eighth pass.

Gus Bell rapped four hits and drove in four runs to pace Cincinnati's 15-hit attack in the second game victory after the Phillies' longest winning streak of the season in the opener. Rookie pitcher Ray Semproch limited the Redlegs to five hits for his 10th triumph as the Phils made it seven in a row in the first game.

Havana, Cuba — Rudolph Stuenkel, 142, Louisville, outpointed Kid Phipps, 147, Cuba, 10 rounds.

Flinstenwald went into the final round four strokes behind and was still three strokes back of Wall with three holes to go. But he parried each of the last three clubbings in his spurt with a 40-foot putt on the 72nd hole to force the playoff.

Wall picked up 22,000.

15 Pitchers in All-Star Game This Tuesday

BALTIMORE, Md. (AP)—Bob Turley of the New York Yankees and Warren Spahn of the Milwaukee Braves today were named starting pitchers for Tuesday's 25th All-Star baseball game.

The choice of Spahn was a surprise because the American League starting lineup contained only two left-handed batters.

Turley's choice was expected. He leads major league pitchers with 12 victories, 3 defeats. Spahn, 37, has a 10-5 record for the Braves.

Manager Fred Haney of Milwaukee pulled another surprise when he listed Willie Mays, San Francisco centerfielder, as his leadoff man.

Washington Is Likely to Lose Baseball Club

By GEORGE BOWEN

Associated Press Sports Writer

BALTIMORE (AP) — The recent shifting tides of major league baseball continue to red today with the Washington Senators taking a sounding on their possible movement.

Calvin Griffith, president of the Senators, will ask the other American League owners how they feel about continuing to play in Washington.

Washington is last in the standings and more important to other operators last in attendance. Visiting teams are paid according to each ticket sold.

One Washington director claimed at the last board meeting that visiting teams barely made expenses. The directors instructed Griffith to ask the owners at their meeting in conjunction with the All-Star game their reaction to a move out of the nation's capital.

Minneapolis, Houston, Dallas and Toronto have been mentioned as likely new homes of the Senators.

An internal struggle has been silver anniversary game started Sunday games. A few years back, it seemed everybody on the roster worked on the final day of regular play.

Manager Casey Stengel of the New York Yankees, perennial boss of the Americans, sounded off last year at St. Louis when he learned pitchers he wanted to use weren't available.

Old Case picked three men off his own Yankee staff this year. He was able to see to it that Bob Turley, top man in the majors with a 12-3 record, didn't pitch since beating Washington Friday with a three-hitter.

Manager Fred Haney of the Milwaukee Braves, who heads the Nationals, also has been close mouthed about his pitching selections. However, he leaned toward Bob Friend of Pittsburgh, Friend beat Milwaukee Saturday for his 10th victory.

The preponderance of right-handed hitters in the starting lineups, selected by the players' votes, makes it desirable to start a right-handed pitcher on each side.

Stengel, whose Americans are favored 13-10, has Earl Wynn of Chicago, Ray Niekirk of Cleveland and his own relief man, Ryno Duren, as other right-handers.

For left-handed hitters, he has southpaw Whitey Ford of the Yankees, Billy Pierce of Chicago and Billy O'Dell of Baltimore.

Haney has right-handers Bob Purkey of Cincinnati, who was used briefly in relief Sunday, Larry Jackson of St. Louis, Don McMahon of Milwaukee and Dick Farrell of Philadelphia in addition to Friend.

Jackson started early in the year but has been used only on relief lately. McMahon and Farrell are relief pitchers. His left-handers are his own Warren Spahn, Johnny Podres of Los Angeles and Johnny Antonelli of San Francisco.

St. Louis' All-Star game and Bob Skinner of Pittsburgh are the only left-handed batters in the National's starting lineup.

Nick Fox of Chicago and switch-hitter Mickey Maule of the Yanks are the American lefties against right-handers.

The American League holds a 14-10 edge in the series.

The National League joined the upheaval this year when the Dodgers and Giants were moved from New York to California.

The urge for change hasn't stopped there.

Both leagues, meeting separately, are expected to meet talks about expanding from 16 to 18 teams in this country. The National League will head Chicago's bid to build a stadium as a lure for return of a franchise.

American League sentiment for expansion does not seem favorable so far. However, the two leagues developed and it is up to Commissioner Ford which move would be made.

Labor Chief, Negro Deny Faubus Charge

LITTLE ROCK (AP)—A labor leader and a Negro official have taken issue with recent statements of third-term candidate Gov. Orval Faubus.

V. H. (Bud) Williams of Little Rock, executive secretary of the Arkansas state federal labor Council, said there was not the "slightest shred of evidence to support" Faubus' charge that outside labor "tals were sending teams into the state to work against his candidacy."

I. S. McCClinton of Little Rock, president of the Arkansas Democratic (Negro) voters Assn., rejected a contention by the governor that Negroes had received more benefits under his administration than any other.

"The race problem has been so shamefully handled by him (Faubus) during his administration that not only have the Negro people been hurt, but the state of Arkansas has suffered poor public relations throughout the country," McCClinton said.

Brennan Is Known Now for TV Role

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Recently a visitor on a film set exclaimed, "Why, there's Grandpa McCoy! I imagine finding him making a movie!"

Later, Walter Brennan sighed: "Think of it—after three Oscars and 40 years in the picture business, I'm known for a character I did one season on television."

Such are the vagaries of the new show business, and Walter isn't complaining. Far from it. Sixty-four this month, he's enjoying the biggest success of a long and distinguished career.

Right now, he is back at the job he knows best: making movies. He's playing an out-coder in "Rio Bravo," a Western with John Wayne, Dean Jagger and Rickey Nelson.

For realism's sake, he has taken out his dental plates and is playing the old fellow with a gummy drawl. He also is unshaven. "I wanted to get as far away from Grandpa McCoy as I could," he remarked. "And still, the visitors on the set always recognize me from the TV show."

As most Thursday night watchers know, Walter is the star of "The Real McCoys." The show is about some transplanted mountain folks who got into a variety of funny escapades in their new home in California.

The show was roundly scolded by the critics and proceeded to confound them by being one of the season's real successes in the audience ratings. It asked him how he accounted for this.

"I don't know," he replied, "except that it is funny and still honest."

Others might add that a guy named Walter Brennan has a lot to do with it. The guy has more tricks than a convention of magicians.

Though he often plays hillbillies and Cracksers, Walter actually hails from Swampscott, Mass. When he's not doing a role, he talks with an "A" as broad as the Harvard Yalder.

"When I'm in character, it doesn't show," he said. "But it can be pretty hard to get rid of at other times. I've been in the cattle business in Oregon for a long time, and I had to learn to order 'cubes' instead of 'cubes.' I kept getting cows instead."

Sports in Brief

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla. (AP) — Jack Mayer and Mrs. Noye Person played the piano for 76 hours 48 minutes and 3 seconds before halting the contest on the advice of a doctor Sunday.

Mayer, a supper club entertainer, and Mrs. Person, a former Rocky Mount, N.C., radio entertainer, were the last of six players who started the keyboard marathon Thursday morning.

The players got five-minute breaks every two hours until 1 p.m. Saturday, then 10-minute breaks.

Judges called it a tie and awarded Mrs. Person and Mayer each a $800 piano.

DETROIT (AP) — John Steinmetz Jr., 4, and his brother Gary, 3, and two other youngsters were filling up a plastic swimming pool in the Steinmetz back yard so they could cool off.

A man in a pickup truck was driving down the alley and saw the children. He stopped his truck, jumped over a fence, grabbed the pool, threw it in his truck and took off. Police are searching for the man.

SPRINGFIELD, Mo. (AP) — Two cars collided near here Sunday during a thundershower, killing six persons. Two other were injured critically.

Dead are Aaron Leitwein, 66; his wife Dathna, 64; their son Harry Leitwein, 45, and his son Dean, 13, all of Springfield; and Howard Bigelow, 44, and his son David, 13, Kansas City.

The injured are Bigelow's other son Tommy, 9, and Mrs. Harry Leitwein, 43.

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Fisher-man H. E. Raynor tells this story: He baited his hook with a minnow and tossed it in a lake near here. Minutes later he pulled in his line and found that the bait had caught a still smaller fish in its mouth.

All of Minnesota Quads Die But One

MANKATO, Minn. (AP) — One of the two surviving Hansen quadruplets was in poor condition early today.

The quadruplet daughters were born Saturday to Mrs. Gerald Hansen, 28, wife of Mankato school teacher. Two of the babies, Christine and Deborah, died that night.

Attendants said the condition of Benjamin worsened Sunday night. The other surviving infant, Rebecca, remained in satisfactory condition.

The babies weighed about two pounds each and were 22 months premature.

Britain, at the end of the Seven Years' War in 1763 had the choice of annexing from France either Guadeloupe or Canada. Guadeloupe was then considered the richer prize because of its sugar crops, but Britain chose Canada for strategic reasons.

THE STORY: Riley Condon, sworn enemy of Tom Rosser, a former marshal, now he must have Rosser killed or Rosser will kill him. Condon does not know that Rosser has been hired by the railroad to tame the town of Great Plains.

CHAPTER XVI

At 7:30 in the evening Riley Condon came out of his office. He looked over the big room and saw Guy Tavenner preparing his fare layout.

"Tavenner!"

Tavenner looked up, frowned, then rose and came across the room. "Yes, Riley."

Condon took out his big gold watch and looked at it. "Find your friend, Tom Rosser—"

"He's no friend of mine."

"Find him, anyway. At exactly 7:45 tell him to hurry over to the livery stable and take a look at his horse."

Tavenner scowled. "You could send one of the bartenders to do that."

"I'm sending you."

It was in Guy Tavenner's mind to tell Riley Condon to do it himself, but his courage wasn't that big. He left the Pleasure Palace and clomped to the hotel. Rosser was in the lobby, reading a St. Paul newspaper. It was still early and he went to his room and waited five minutes.

Tavenner came into the lobby at 7:42 and went over to Rosser. "Better get over to the barn and look at that horse of yours," Tavenner snapped.

Rosser regarded him sharply. "Why?"

"Because I'm telling you. And now!"

Rosser got to his feet, saw Susan coming down the stairs. He hesitated, then turned and went out of the hotel.

In the falling darkness he headed for the livery stable. He approached it, his hand swinging close to the butt of his revolver. There was a light inside the stable—a dim lantern. As he stepped into the open doorway he saw by the lantern light that a body was sprawled on the floor.

The oldest who took care of the stable at night.

It was a trap.

Rosser started to back away. Then a horse in a stall whickered. A foot stamped and a man swore angrily. It was in Alexander's stall. Rosser's hand dropped to his gun.

A horse suddenly screamed—a scream of terrible anguish. It continued to scream, although it was momentarily cut off as a huge body thudded to the stable floor.

Flon came out of the stall. Rosser recognized him even in the dim light. Flon, holding a dripping knife in his hand.

"Flon!" Rosser said hoarsely. "The big gunfighter," sneered Flon, starting toward Rosser. "I just fixed your horse—"

Deliberately, he threw away his knife. "Gonna fight me?"

For one awful moment Rosser was sick at his stomach. Then something seemed to explode within him. He was not even aware that he drew his gun, that the explosion that rocked the livery stable came from his gun.

But Flon was staggering. "You shot me!" he gasped.

"Condon told me. That was as much as he got out. He fell forward on his face, twitched once or twice, then lay still."

People appeared in the livery stable behind Rosser. He was not even aware of them. He walked stiffly to the stall in which Alexander lay. He saw what Flon had done to the magnificent animal and pointed his gun at the horse's head. He pulled the trigger twice, then came out of the stall.

Joe Leach grabbed his arm. "Mikayd," he said. "You killed Flon!"

He cringed. Alexander, Rosser said dully.

Leach looked into the stall, turned back, shuddering. "Man'd do a thing like that..."

Johnny Honsinger came striding into the stable. His gun was in his hand. "Drop it, old man," he cried. "Drop it, or try using it!"

Rosser looked at the revolver hanging loosely in his hand. His eyes went up toward Honsinger, saw that the young gunfighter was tense, eager. He wanted to kill Rosser.

Rosser let the gun fall from his hand.

Honsinger came forward. "You gave up," he said, disappointed. Then his eyes fell on Flon's body.

"You killed him?"

"I killed him," Rosser said. "You're under arrest," cried Honsinger. "Throw up your hands."

Moody did not like what he saw in the young marshal's eyes and came toward Rosser.

"Better surrender, Tom," he said quickly. "We'll get it straightened out later."

Honsinger bared his teeth in a wicked grin. "Man gets caught murdering somebody he generally gets straightened out—at the end of a rope."

Rosser dozed fitfully through the night. He heard movement in the other room, talk now and then but no one opened the door to his cell.

Finally, after an hour or more of the sun peeking into the room, the door was unlocked. Honsinger sang out. "Rise and shine, prisoner!" Then, "We're on our way to court and if things to right you'll be stretching rope before sundown."

Rosser left the marshal's office, with Honsinger following him closely. The street had only a few people on it. Rosser learned the reason as he approached the "court" building. A crowd stood outside and there were at least 50 people inside.

Chapter XVII

As Rosser and Honsinger approached, "Judge" Murcott banged a hammer on the planks before him.

"Court is now in session," he announced. "Prisoner, you're gonna give me a rough time, huh?"

"No, he ain't, Judge," said Johnny Honsinger. "I caught him in the act practically of killing Flon and that's all there's to it."

"Prisoner," snapped Judge Murcott. "You heard the charge. Guilty or not guilty?"

Josh Moody pushed forward. "Wait a minute, now. Rosser's going to have a fair trial."

Murcott regarded Moody with a jaundiced eye. "You may be mayor of this here town, Josh, but I'm telling you, I'm the judge."

Joe Leach and Dr. Kent stepped up beside Moody.

"Listen, Murcott," Dr. Kent said earnestly. "I don't know how you ever got elected but as long as you are judge, you're going to conduct yourself like one."

"You're in contempt of court!" howled Murcott. "You can't talk to me like that!"

"I can," said Dr. Kent firmly. "Because I know you're a souse-bag and the next time you get the heebie-jeebies you can go and bag your head, instead of coming to me."

"You got not right to talk like that," whined Murcott. "Not in front of people!"

"Then pull yourself together," Josh Moody said. "A man's on trial for his life. I think this should be a jury trial."

Riley Condon and Ken Rud, who had edged forward, confronted the mayor. "Jury trial suits us fine," said Condon. "Who'll pick the jury?"

Judge Murcott took his cue from Condon. "I'll pick it for you."

"Never mind," said Rosser. "I'll pick it for you."

"Never mind," said Rosser. "I'll pick it for you."

"Never mind," said Rosser. "I'll pick it for you."

This Reunion Held Annually in a Cemetery

WHAT HAS ONCE GARNETTS PILLE, Ky. (AP)—"I guess it is a little unique to have a reunion in a cemetery," H. D. Higbee said.

"But it's about the only time we ever get to see each other."

Higbee, a 51-year-old iron shop worker at Louisville, and about 150 other folks who once lived in the small village of Garnettsville got together Sunday at the burial grounds for their annual reunion.

The government bought their land in 1940 and made it part of the Ft. Knox military reservation. The 10-acre cemetery is the only land they retained.

What do people talk about in a cemetery?

Old friends, old times, those who have passed on and the future generation, says Higbee.

Like some of the others present, he said he thought back to his boyhood days.

He also shared the surprise of meeting a family which hadn't been heard from since Garnettsville disappeared.

Just recently the family read about the reunion in a newspaper and decided to attend.

Some of the reunion is taken up by business. There's the matter of a fund to keep the cemetery in shape.

Everyone contributes as the need arises.

There's also the matter of reading the list of people who purchase new lots every year—the people who want to be buried in their family lots.

"Some of the older ones are dying off each year," Higbee says.

But he's quick to add the old-timers hope their children will want to carry on the custom of getting together to talk about what used to be.

denly, "We'll do without the jury."

"You may be making a mistake," warned Dr. Kent.

"It's six of one, half a dozen of the other," Rosser said cynically. "If Murcott picks the jury."

A well-dressed man who had been standing just inside the door now came forward. "This is a farce. I've never seen a more ridiculous trial in my life..."

The judge stabbed at the newcomer with the hammer. "Who're you?"

"My name," the man said grimly, "is James Fenimore Felt."

Judge Murcott almost swallowed his Adam's apple.

"Uh—uh—Mr. Felt. It's a pleasure to meet you."

"I'm sorry I can't say the same about you," snapped Felt.

The judge turned red, but the youthful marshal stepped into the breach. "Mr. Felt, you may be a big noise everywhere else, but right here you're just a man butting into something that ain't none of your business. You'll keep your mouth shut like everybody else or so help me, I'll throw you out of this courtroom."

Jim Felt flinched almost as if he had been struck with a fist. Without another word, or even a glance at Tom Rosser, he turned and walked out of the room. A jumble went up in the crowd, which was silenced by Johnny Honsinger.

"Shut up, everybody. We got a man here to hang. Let's get down here to business!"

Dr. Kent turned and faced the courtroom. "I'm getting sick and tired of a kill-crazy gunfighter pushing people around. If you people intend to stand for it—I don't."

"Easy, Doc," Riley Condon said suddenly. "We don't want more trouble than we already got."

"Christopher," Joe Leach said, "step up!"

The night hostler of the livery stable shuffled forward. "Chris," Leach continued, "you were on the job last night. Tell the court what happened."

"All I know," said the hostler. "I was sittin' in the stable when the big fellow—"

"What big fellow?"

Flon. Like I said he come in and asked me what stall Alexander was in and when I told him he hit me one and I went out like a lantern. Next thing I know there was a million people in the barn and somebody said Condon's name."

"Objection!" howled Riley Condon. "I had nothing to do with Flon."

Dr. Kent turned back to the hostler.

"All right, that'll be all, Rosser. I'd like to ask you a few questions."

"Go ahead."

"Why did you go to the livery stable last night?"

"Because a man came to the hotel and said I should go and take a look at my horse. The way he said it caused me to believe—"

"Never mind the way he said it. Who was the man?"

Rosser drew a deep breath, sent one covert glance at the baffled Susan Tavenner and shook his head.

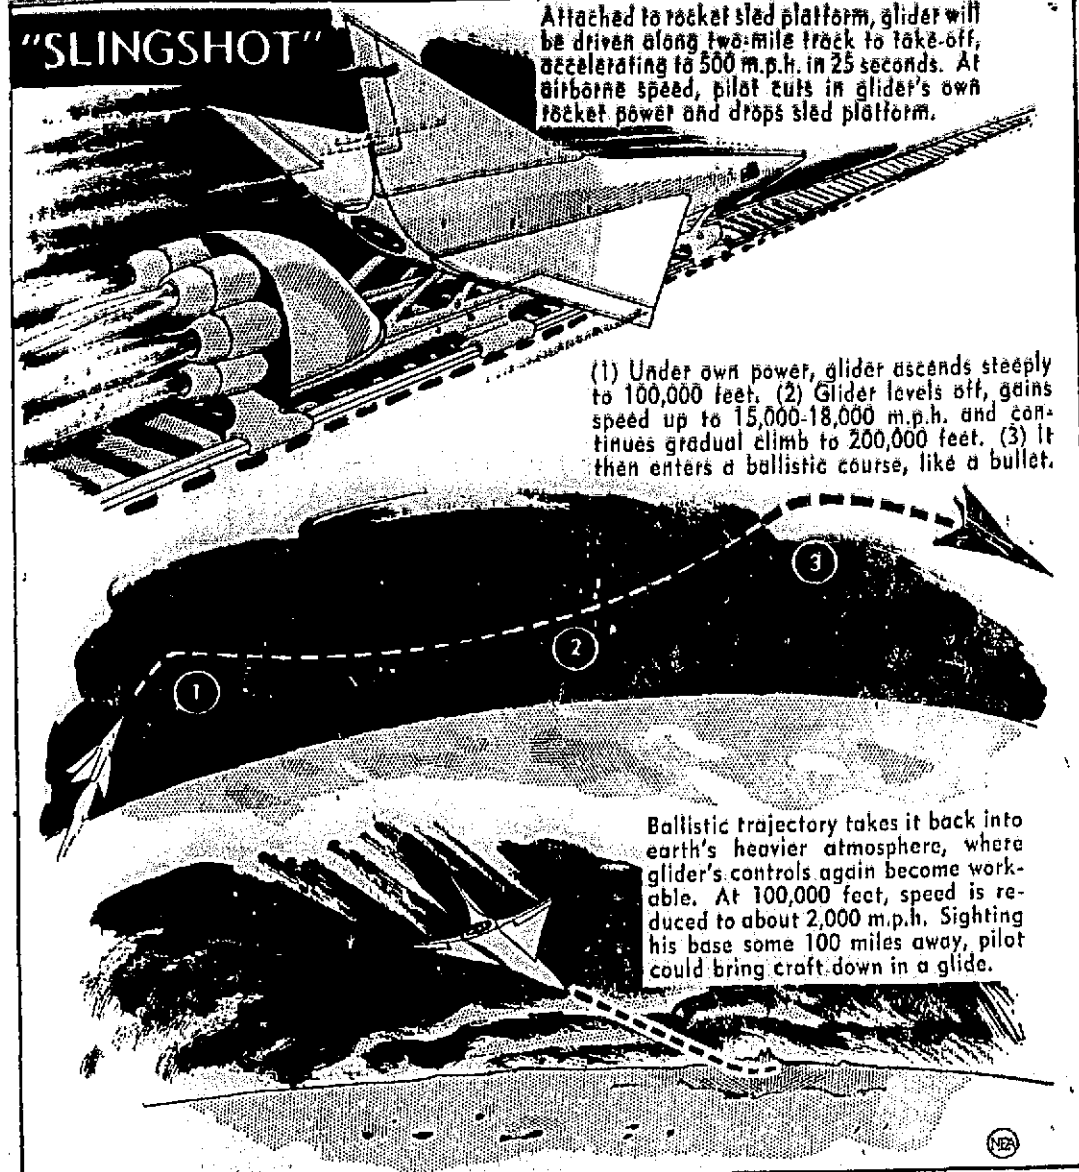

"I don't know."

"I know," rang out the voice of Susan Tavenner.

Guy Tavenner gasped. "Susan!" He reached savagely for her arm, but she eluded his grasp and started forward.

"It was my husband," she said firmly.

(To Be Continued)

Attached to rocket sled platform, glider will be driven along two-mile track to take-off, accelerating to 500 m.p.h. in 25 seconds. At airborne speed, pilot cuts in glider's own rocket power and drops sled platform.

(1) Under own power, glider ascends steeply to 100,000 feet. (2) Glider levels off, gains speed up to 15,000-18,000 m.p.h. and continues gradual climb to 200,000 feet. (3) It then enters a ballistic course, like a bullet.

Ballistic trajectory takes it back into earth's heavier atmosphere, where glider's controls again become workable. At 100,000 feet, speed is reduced to about 2,000 m.p.h. Sighting his base some 100 miles away, pilot could bring craft down in a glide.

MAN-IN-A-ROCKET AT 15,000 M.P.H.—Now in the design stage is a manned, hyper-sonic rocket glider expected to outfly the fastest intercontinental ballistic missiles. Dubbed "Slingshot," the glider would be launched from a high-speed rocket sled, like those used by the U.S. Air Force to test the effects of high speed flight on human beings. Pictograph above illustrates how the rocket glider would be flown. Experts foresee possible commercial use for it. The gliders could be used for 600-mile hops, for global travel with a range of 12,000 miles or as intercontinental passenger aircraft.

Robot Brain Developed by Navy Is Expected to Take Over Job of Landing Planes

By FRANK CAREY

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Navy announced today the partial development of an electronic robot it says will be able to match some of the functions of the human brain.

It calls the robot a Perceptron. At least another year will be required to complete the first full pilot model, the Navy said, but its principle and concept already have been demonstrated successfully by using a large electronic computer. When it is fully developed, the machine is expected to be able to perceive and identify its surroundings without any human training or control. It differs from the ordinary computer in that it does not have to be fed facts and figures in advance.

Among the potential uses to which such a robot eventually may be put, the announcement said, are these:

New-type automatic landing systems and automatic pilots for aircraft. . . automatic reading of the printed or written word. . . responding to verbal commands. . . automatic language translation, either in written or vocal form. . . automatic unearthing of scientific and other information buried in library books. . . and even rapid-fire recognition of musical compositions, with all the accuracy of a music critic.

It would operate in much the same way that the human eye and certain brain areas work together to provide the human function of recognition.

Dr. Frank Rosenblatt, research psychologist at the Cornell Aeronautical Laboratory, Inc., working under a contract with the Office of Naval Research, came up with the Perceptron concept.

MEMO TO ADVERTISERS

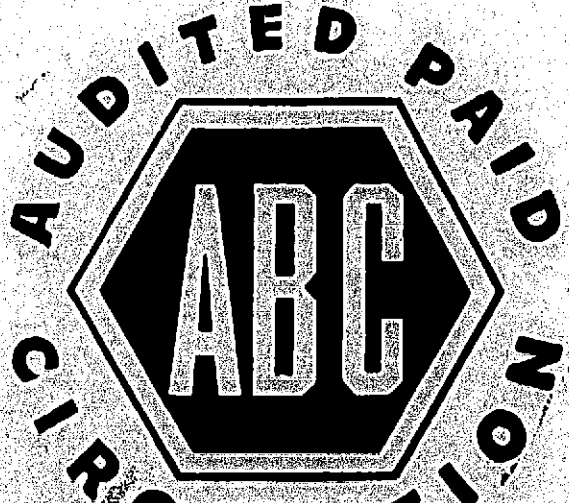

The Hallmark of Circulation Integrity

In the same way that STERLING on silver signifies a standard of known value, so is this A.B.C. emblem a symbol of FACTS about the circulations of newspapers and periodicals. It is the emblem of membership in the Audit Bureau of Circulations* and is assurance to advertisers that the circulations of member publications are measured, audited and reported in accordance with the rigid standards that have been mutually approved and adopted by advertisers and publishers. Here's why our membership in the A.B.C. is important to our advertisers and ourselves: At regular intervals one of the Bureau's large staff of experienced circulation auditors makes a thorough inspection and audit of our circulation records. The results of this exacting audit show: how much circulation we have; where it goes; how it was obtained; and many other FACTS that advertisers need as a sound basis for their advertising investments. This audited information is published by the Bureau in easy-to-read A.B.C. reports which are available to our advertisers on request.

*The Audit Bureau of Circulations, of which this newspaper is a member, is a non-profit association of 3,375 advertisers, advertising agencies and publishers. Organized in 1914, A.B.C. brought order out of advertising chaos by establishing a set of standards for auditing and reporting the circulation of newspapers and periodicals.

HOPE STAR

Carter Moves for Bout With Patterson

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Harold Carter hopes to make another move toward an eventual meeting with heavyweight champion Floyd Patterson by hurling over Cuban Nino Valdes in a Wednesday fight at Sackville, Wash.

The methodical Carter whipped Willie Besmanoff June 13 in his first scrap after 18 months in the Army. He is rated No. 5 contender by the National Boxing Association and No. 9 by Ring.

Valdes, 33, is almost 10 years older than Carter. After losing a split decision to Alex Miller in February, the big fellow from Havana has won three straight from Wayne Bethea, Mike DeJohn and Johnny Summerlin.

The 10-round match will be carried on ABC-television from the Spokane Coliseum.

Mickey Crawford and Gaspar Ortega, two welterweights with an idea of mixing with Virgil Akins, the new champion, fight Friday at Madison Square Garden in a match that could revise the 147-pound ratings.

Ortega lost to Ralph Dupas and beat Bob Torrance in his two 1938 appearances. Ring ranks him No. 1. No. 2 but the NBA listed him No. 7.

Crawford who has won 22 of 29 pro fights is unbeaten this year with victories over Andy Figuero, Gil Turner, Tex Gonnles and Chico Vojar. Crawford is No. 4 with the NBA. No. 9 with Ring.

The Garden fight will be carried on NBC radio-TV.

News Briefs

HOT SPRINGS, Ark. (AP) — State Trooper Glen Minlon said yesterday he would report to the Civil Aeronautics Administration his findings in an investigation of two light planes which allegedly buzzed low over boats and water skiers on Lake Hamilton near here.

He said one of the planes severed a high voltage power line, leaving some residences on the lake without electricity.

LITTLE ROCK (AP)—More than 1,000 representatives of labor and management in 10 states are expected to attend the 3-day Southern States Apprenticeship Conference which will open here Wednesday. The labor management meeting will include delegates from Arkansas, Texas, Oklahoma, Louisiana, Tennessee, Mississippi, Alabama, South Carolina, Georgia and Florida.
